The Mister Luxembourg committee is appealing to all young males of either Luxembourgish nationality or born in the Grand-Duchy, a rule that has recently been updated, to become the very first Mister Luxembourg.

Mister Luxembourg already has 5 contestants for the election and they are recruiting an extra 5 young men for the final on the 19th of December. The competition celebrates the charm and class that can be found in the Grand-Duchy.

The Miss and Mister Luxembourg committee has released exclusively to Station.lu the details of 4 of the 5 male finalists:

- * Steve Pinto da Silva from Cruchten is 23 years old and works in a bank, he is interested in fitness, cinema and socialising.
- * Stephan Abramitovsky, 22 years old is from Leudelange, he works as a commercial representative he likes rugby, football, travelling, European culture and Russian music.
- * Marco Camilloni is 29 and hails from Differdange, he works in the insurance sector and is interested in sports, travel and fashion.
- * Carlo Marina from Luxembourg-city is 30 years old and works in facility management his interests are sports, cinema and music.

The contest is open to all young men between the ages of 18 and 30 and Muriel Gilbert, President of the Miss Luxembourg Committee stressed that the competition for men is taken just as seriously as the Miss Luxembourg competition.

Any guy who fills the criteria is entitled to enter, the contestants should be single and without children, be close to the Luxembourgish culture and be willing to take part in charity work.

The Miss Luxembourg committee has already found its 10 Miss finalists who are Carole Brucher, Nathana Colling, Deborah Mirizzi, Sharon Laranjeira, Joelle Lahr, Laura Lazic, Natascha Bintz, Mandy Raach, Nancy Greis and Shari Thuyns.

All the finalists, male and female, will be taken to Tunisia for a week to prepare for the final election in Château d'Urspelt on the 19th of December.
